OBJECTIVE: This course is designed as an introduction to what goes on in Political Science. It seeks to open doors to understanding the issues that preoccupy politics. How did political thinking emerge? How much value should we attach to political imagination in today's world? Why is politics the object of so much "curse" and what is there to say in "praise" of politics?

POLI 1001 strives toward learning competency, in particular:

- the ability to think, describe, and analyze politics in all forms
- to understand the decision-making process involved not just in politics, but in our own daily lives
- to use ideas and concepts learned in class to gain general knowledge

By the end of the semester, it is expected that students should come to accept politics as a vital academic tool for everyday existence.

TEXT: There is one required textbook:

Craig Parsons: Introduction to Political Science: How to Think for Yourself about Politics Pearson 2017

You should also keep up with the kind of political news stories, as published in The New York Times, and its opinion page.

STUDENT RESPONSIBILITY:

- Attend all class sessions
- Get involved in class discussions
- Be knowledgeable of ongoing events
- Apply material learned in class to papers, exams, and other assignments
